

Abstract

The present invention relates to a method and system for leasing a vehicle, including the generation of a quote for a leased vehicle and the generation of a credit report for the lessee. The invention may utilize a user interface, a server, and a communication pathway to electronically solicit, receive, store, and compute leasing and credit information, and generate reports and documentation.